The wrong name can send the wrong message about you, while the right name can give your business exactly the boost it needs. Check out the ideas of company names below. Find a Name That Conveys User Benefit When a business is starting out and is trying to make a name for itself, it can really benefit from a name that identifies what it does. Having the name of the type of service you provide or the product you create lets people know immediately what you do. It can help you stand out and be found by people who are looking for that specific product or service. Choose a Name That's Easily Searchable and Spelled Properly! It's fun to make up or choose names that are creatively spelled, but unless you have a massive marketing budget to promote that misspelled word, you'll be making it harder for people to find you. If you need every dime of your marketing outreach budget to be well spent, use proper spelling so that it's easy to find you. Choose a Name That Sounds Nice and Rolls Off the Tongue People like saying pleasant or fun words. If your company has a name that sounds discordant or unpleasant, people won't want to say it. They'll subconsciously develop a negative association with the word and, by proxy, your business. Pleasant or fun words are much more important if you're trying to make your company name pleasant or memorable. Check Out Possible Names on Google AdWords Google AdWords has a feature called the "find keywords" tool. Once you enter a possible company name into the tool, it will push out a list of similar search phrases. You're then able to see how phrases similar to your company name rank. Do a Thorough Name Search The absolute worst thing you can do is to finally decide on a name, only to find out that there is another USA company with that name. A legal name search will help ensure that doesn't happen. Check out the US Patent and Trademark Office for trademarks and Network Solutions for the domain name.
